"Romance of Centinela Springs"

Scene taken at the Machado Hacienda (Rancho Aguaje del Centinela) by members of the cast of "Romance of Centinela Springs," a feature of Centinela Days, to be presented August 4 and 5, 1933, Inglewood, California.

The Machado Hacienda is reported to be the first residence in Los Angeles county and is now the beautiful country home of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Crawford. This home was first occupied by Don Yarnacio Machado, then, Bruno Alvia, and later, Sir Robert and Lady Matilda Josephine Burnett of Crathes Castle, Leys, in the County of Kincardine, Scotland, Kingdom of Great Britain. Sir Robert sold the rancho to Col. Daniel Freeman, the founder of Inglewood, in 1882 and Col. Freeman sold the land later to the present owners.

Romance of Centinela Springs, an annual pageant woven around a beautiful Indian love story and the history, romance and traditions of Centinela Valley. The plot centers around Centinela Springs, the location of which is now Centinela Park in Inglewood, California. The pageant is presented in the Inglewood bowl, located on the site of the original springs amid lovely old forest trees.

To Old Subscribers - -

DURING the trying years of the Depression when every dollar was needed in many families to meet the bare necessities of sustaining life, the TORRANCE HERALD and LOMITA NEWS has been glad to extend credit to old subscribers. Some folks who have been subscribers for nearly twenty years were obliged to defer making their customary regular payments during recent years. To have taken their names off the list would have been like deserting old friends. Then too, we felt that the savings offered in the newspaper advertisements, particularly the food bargains, would be helpful in making limited funds stretch farther.

But the Depression is passing. Recovery is under way. Payrolls are picking up, and it should be easier now to pay up. Consequently, we are making this special "SAVE-HALF" offer to make it easier for old subscribers to settle their old accounts and again place their subscriptions on a paid-in-advance basis. Take advantage of this exceptional offer before you forget it.

AFTER SEPTEMBER 10, THE PRICE WILL GO BACK TO THE REGULAR BASIS, AND ALL DELINQUENT SUBSCRIPTIONS DISCONTINUED.
